Raiffeisen Switzerland launches Credit Research service for the Swiss capital market

- By expanding its range of services to include credit analyses of domestic issuers, Raiffeisen is promoting transparency and comparability in the Swiss bond market
- The analyses will initially cover 28 selected Swiss issuers and will be expanded gradually
- By establishing a dedicated Credit Research team, Raiffeisen is strengthening its offering to Swiss companies and its positioning as a partner for domestic issuers and investors

St.Gallen, 18 November 2026. Raiffeisen Switzerland has completed the establishment of its own Credit Research team. From 18 November 2026, it will publish independent assessments of the credit quality of selected Swiss issuers. This means the banking group can now offer institutional investors, asset managers and other professional market participants in Switzerland access to professional credit analyses. The assessments are based on a transparent, consistent methodology that takes into account not only key financial indicators but also qualitative factors such as business models, market positioning, financial policies, the regulatory environment and an issuer's ownership structure.

The focus is on selected Swiss issuers and market segments in which local market knowledge and an in-depth understanding of the regulatory and economic framework in Switzerland are particularly valuable. The team of three analysts, led by Michael Gähler, will initially cover 28 Swiss issuers. The scope will then be expanded gradually over the coming months. The aim is to cover around 60 Swiss issuers by the end of 2027, particularly in the industrial, real estate, consumer goods, health and energy sectors.

Raiffeisen fosters access to the Swiss capital market for domestic companies

With this new offering, Raiffeisen is strengthening its position as one of the leading banks in the domestic capital market business and helping to improve transparency and comparability in the Swiss bond market. "Our independent credit analyses help provide a nuanced assessment of credit risks. With this service, we are creating added value for professional investors in Switzerland. At the same time, we are making an important contribution to the economy by making it easier for Swiss companies to access the capital market," says Philipp Ackermann, Head of Corporate Clients & Trading and Member of the Executive Board of Raiffeisen Switzerland.
